ROLE 1: CHARLOTTE BENSON

Lead | Female | Late 20s to Early 30s

Charlotte is an isolated woman whose increasingly unusual experiences begin to disrupt her sense of control and understanding of reality.

As she attempts to navigate her circumstances, Charlotte becomes caught between fear, frustration, curiosity, and uncertainty. Her physical experiences become increasingly difficult to separate from her psychological state.

Performance Requirements:

* Strong dramatic acting abilities with an emphasis on subtle facial expressions and physical storytelling.

* Comfortable portraying psychological distress, paranoia, vulnerability, and moments of dark humor.

* Ability to convey conflicting emotions through body language and physical movement.

* Comfortable performing sequences involving simulated involuntary hand movements and physical coordination.

* Able to carry emotionally demanding scenes with minimal dialogue.

* Preferably redheaded, but hazel or light brown hair is fine.

The role requires an actress capable of balancing grounded realism with unconventional physical and psychological performance.

ROLE 2: PAULA BENSON

Supporting Role | Female | Early 30s

Paula is an important figure in Charlotte's story, whose relationship with her contributes to the film's psychological and emotional tension.

Her presence introduces another dimension to Charlotte's increasingly complicated circumstances. The nature of their relationship and the events surrounding them gradually become part of the film's central mystery.

Performance Requirements:

* Strong dramatic acting abilities and natural screen presence.

* Comfortable portraying emotional complexity and interpersonal tension.

* Ability to convey subtle shifts in mood and behavior.

* Comfortable working within a story that relies on ambiguity, atmosphere, and psychological suspense.

The role calls for an actress who can bring depth and authenticity to a character whose significance unfolds through her interactions with Charlotte.
